The FARM TRIBUNE

Vol. XVIII, No. 40 PUBLISHED WEEKLY — PORTERVILLE, CALIFORNIA Thursday, March 18, 1965

SLATED FOR dedication the evening of March 30 is the new gymnasium on the Porterville College campus, with school officials ready to officially accept the 15,000 square-foot building from Contractor David Biggar when minor incomplete items are taken care of. (Not including a major item of penalty for failure of the contractor to finish the building on contract schedule.) Looking over the interior of the new gym, which is designed for multi-use on the college campus, are, from left, Jim Maples, college basketball coach; Carl Elder, director of athletics; C. W. Easterbrook, district superintendent; and Orlin Shires, director of the college. Just to get the feel of the shining, highly polished floor, and to give the facility a practical test, a student basketball game will be played at noon, next Wednesday. Additional photos, page 10.

NEW GYM VIRTUALLY COMPLETED

PORTERVILLE, Mar. 18 — The new Porterville college gymnasium, originally scheduled for completion last October 10, is now virtually finished, and once minor incompletions are taken care of, it is expected school trustees will accept the building from Contractor David Biggar, of Bakersfield.

Not so minor, however, is a penalty charge of $50 for each day that has elapsed beyond the contract completion date, a charge, adjusted by school trustees to take into account work delays beyond control of the contractor, at $6,400, an amount the school board is seeking from the contractor.

Present plan, however, is to officially dedicate the 15,000 square foot, $318,650 multi-use gymnasium building the evening of March 30, and to test out the facility with a student basketball game during the school noon period next Wednesday.

The main area of the gymnasium provides space for a college-size basketball court, 50 by 90 feet; two cross courts for basketball; eight badminton courts and three volleyball courts. Included also in the building are storage rooms, an exercise room, rest rooms, a snack bar, and a sound control room.

The gymnasium ties in with men's and women's dressing and shower rooms, and other physical education facilities, constructed several years ago on the college campus.

Designed as a multi-use building, the gymnasium will house physical education classes during the school day, and will be used for student assemblies and other student activities. Special atten-

EDA SPEES

Grand Marshal Of The Springville-Sierra Rodeo Parade

Eda Spees Is Named Grand Marshal Of Springville-Sierra Rodeo Parade

A woman who spent some 30 years working for the benefit of patients in the Springville hospital has been named grand marshal of the 1965 western parade that will open the Springville-Sierra rodeo weekend the morning of April 10.

The woman — Eda Spees — has been a resident of Springville for 36 years and is now retired after having served in many positions at the Springville hospital since she and her husband, the late Ira Spees Sr., went to work there back in 1930.

Dr. John Tracy Melvin, the hospital's first director and superintendent, was still active; a train came into Springville once a week, stopping at the depot located just down the river from the Soda Spring; there were no houses then on River drive, along the bank of the Tule river; Springville was still pretty much a backwoods town, with a dance hall and "river resort" area around the Soda Spring that attracted many weekend visitors from the valley; the soda water that flows from the spring was considered a veritable "health potion" by many of those visitors — in fact it still is by some.

As for the Tulare-Kings County Tuberculosis hospital, Mrs. Spees recalls that the administration building was still a remodeled ranch house, and that there were only two buildings to house patients. Patient capacity of the hospital then was 90; today the hospital is a most modern facility, operated entirely by the County of Tulare, and capable of serving 240 patients.

Mrs. Spees remembers when Dr. William A. Winn came to the hospital in 1934 as superintendent and medical director. And Dr. Winn remembers Mr. and Mrs. Spees with considerable affection.

"Without people like the Spees, I don't know how we could have kept the hospital going in the middle 1930s and through the World War II years," Dr. Winn says. "Mrs. Spees was always willing to work any time and any place that she was needed; she was never concerned about the hours involved; she was always concerned about the welfare of patients and about operation of the hospital. I think it's fine that she is going to be honored by the community."

Mrs. Spees started in the hospital kitchen in 1930; she studied to become a nurse's aide and served for many years in this capacity, at-

Canterbelle Horse Show Slated Sunday

PORTERVILLE, Mar. 18 — Entries close today for the fifth annual open horse show of the Porterville Canterbelles, scheduled for Sunday at the Rocky Hill arena, but post entries will be accepted up to a half an hour before each event, according to Elmer Broad, show chairman.

This year's show, which will feature two jumping classes as well as English, Western and halter classes, will get underway at

We Only Heard—

BY BILL RODGERS

THE DECISION of Gary Garlund, at KTIP, to make a sensationalized editorial issue out of the tragic death of two children and the serious injury of four others by stab wounds inflicted by their father, Henry Camarena, is, in a smaller way, as unfortunate as the incident itself, for Mr. Garlund's sensation-seeking words have brought unjust and damaging criticism to the Sierra View District hospital, and most certainly have added nothing but innuendo and confusion to an already sad situation.

Editorial Comment

LOOK HOMEWARD, PAT

In his 1965 economic report to the Legislature, Governor Brown took a rather long and longing look toward Washington for help in creating the 4000 new jobs a week needed to keep pace with the state's burgeoning population. He said the federal government must help stimulate California's economy "in its fiscal and monetary policies."

It is quite true, of course, that those policies do affect the economy of any state, especially one that has the large national defense industries we do. But so do state government policies, and more directly. Private industry in California is doing a tremendous job of keeping pace with the state's population growth. The great utilities, the service and manufacturing businesses large and small, agriculture, all are supplying services and goods, jobs and taxes, in huge quantities. There is room for new industry, too, with its new payrolls and purchases and production. But new industry will come, and present industry will expand, only in a favorable business climate.

Governor Brown may be looking to Washington for stimulating governmental fiscal and monetary policies, but the people of California are looking to Sacramento.

State Scene

By CLEM WHITAKER, JR.

Slowly but surely the battle most experts predict won't be won is being joined in the U. S. Congress—an effort to overturn by congressional action the U. S. Supreme Court reapportionment decision.

The struggle could be won, of course, with the support of President Lyndon Johnson.

California Congressman John F. Baldwin of Martinez who, with 33 other House members has introduced proposed constitutional amendments to permit one house of a state legislature to be apportioned on a basis other than population sets the historical stage in perspective:

In Perspective

"In my opinion the Supreme Court decision on this issue was erroneous. The present Supreme Court reversed a whole series of earlier Supreme Court decisions which held that the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction over the apportionment of state legislatures."

Baldwin points out that the Supreme Court interpreted the 14th Amendment to require both houses of a state legislature to be apportioned according to population. He says, "there is no wording in the 14th Amendment which says so, and the Supreme Court has read something into the 14th Amendment which clearly was not intended by those who originally drafted the amendment."

Baldwin adds, "the legislative history of the 14th Amendment in the form of debate in the House of Representatives and the Senate shows clearly that the authors of the amendment did not intend that it should control the apportionment of state legislatures."

Johnson Needed

While Congressman Baldwin doesn't go into the matter, there is a further contention that the 14th Amendment on which the Supreme Court based its extremely controversial decision was not legally ratified as an amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

The practical facts of life concerning reapportionment, however, are that the majority of Democrats in the Congress are not going to join in overturning the Supreme Court unless accorded clear guidance from the White House. It is not that the reapportionment issue is a partisan matter—in California the State Senate is heavily Democratic and the state's senators are helping to lead the battle to overturn the court ruling. It is simply a matter wherein liberal congressmen who like the Court's decision, for the political advantage it provides, aren't going to make a move unless pushed.

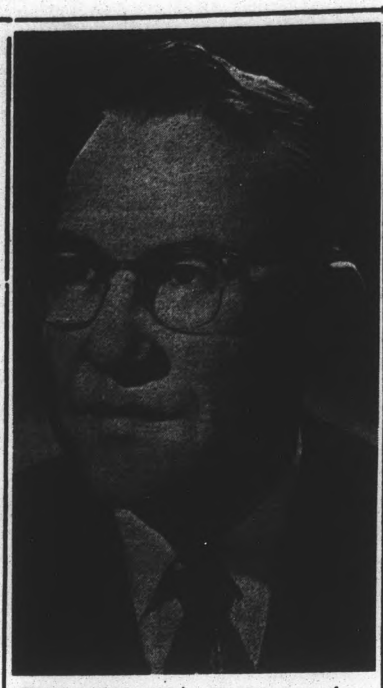

CALIFORNIA SPEAKS

MIKE MYERSON, San Francisco, co-chairman of Ad Hoc Committee to End Discrimination—"It's my personal opinion that private business should be eliminated."

ALFRED R. LYNCH, Pacifica — "The people-planners, in their zeal for the perfect society, would whip their fellow man into shape through ill-conceived or dangerous means."

REID DORN, Davis—"Terminating the bracero law will deprive deserving people of their livelihood and cut off the California farmer's most reliable work force."

BETTY FISHER, L.A. — "Show me a good reader and with a few exceptions you'll be looking at a child who reads continually at home."

EXECUTIVES' CLUB speaker next Monday evening will be Dr. Royal L. Garff, author, philosopher, and nationally-known speaker, whose subject will be, "Stop - Don't Blow Your Top!" Dinner will be served at 7:30 P.M., sharp, at the Terra Bella Memorial building in Terra Bella; reservations should be made with Marie Brey, 288 North D street, not later than this evening.

PORTERVILLE CITY LIBRARY HAS NEW BOOKS

For the past forty years, Harry and Bonaro Overstreet have been giving us wise, thoughtful and helpful books about ourselves, our minds, and how our minds work. These books in the related fields of philosophy and psychology have become guiding influences to many of us. About six years ago they turned their attention to Communism, the whys and wherefores of it, what we should know about it, and how to guard our country against it. Now they have, in their latest and perhaps finest book, shown us how very much alike the patterns of extremism on either side are.

In THE STRANGE TACTICS OF EXTREMISM, these two distinguished authors carefully examine the core of thought in the John Birch Society, in the related Dan Smoot philosophy, and in The Christian Crusade. The identity of the thought processes in Communism and the radical right comes as a surprise and a shock to many of us. The attacks made by both extremes on four of the bulwarks of our democratic society, the public schools, the public libraries, PTA'S, and the mental health movement, are of the greatest interest. The unescapable conclusion is that local power and ingenuity must strengthen the conservative, liberal center of our people.

One thoughtful critics objection to the new book was that in their passion for decency the authors tried too hard to keep their material dispassionate and unemotional. The authors replied: "In our wish to pry loose from the far-right organizations the individuals who have stumbled into them by mistake, we have chosen not to put them on the defensive by the use of loaded labels." This book is a measured, thorough and authoritative study of a currently important subject. For years to come, it will continue to be an important subject. We MUST learn all we can about it.

SAFETY IN THE KITCHEN IS THEME OF SKITS BY VANDALIA 4-H MEMBERS

VANDALIA, Mar. 18 — A procession of injured cooks through a doctor's office and a kitchen scene of safe and unsafe cooking methods were the subjects of the individual improvement skits of the girls' and boys' cooking groups at the March Vandalia 4-H meeting at the Vandalia school.

The culinary actors included Teresa Behunin, Carol and Marisue Mosconi, Linda Nelson, Norma Queen, Anita Ramirez, and Emmy Lu Weldon. John and Pat Bennett, Jeff Keck, Tim Maloney, Doyle Peterson, Bob Shelton, Gary Williams, and Bob Marshall represented the boys' cooking group. The sheep and swine project groups will make a similar presentation next month.

Reports about recent club activities highlighted the remainder of the meeting. These included: Junior Leader Retreat at Scicon school — Jane Bennett; County Field day—Janice Scranton; County Hi 4-H meeting—John Crosiar; Community service—George Crosiar; and Educational tour — Janice Scranton. Further plans for the annual educational tour and for the project tour will be announced at the April club meeting.

Acting in behalf of Mrs. Ed Traylor, community leader, Roland Crosiar announced a sewing project meeting for March 18, and encouraged all members to attend and participate in the Regional Field day on March 20 at South High school in Bakersfield. Crosiar also announced that the deadline for County 4-H Fair entries is April 16, and told of the need for host families in Tulare county for possible International Farm Youth Exchange students next summer. The Fair premium books were distributed, one per family.

John Crosiar, County Hi 4-H president, asked all Vandalia Hi 4-H'ers to plan to work in the Hi 4-H food booth at the 4-H on April 30 and May 1.

Project reports were given by Darnell Grant, Jeff Keck, Cheri and Tim Maloney, Colette Laux, Bob Marshall, and Mark Merzoian.

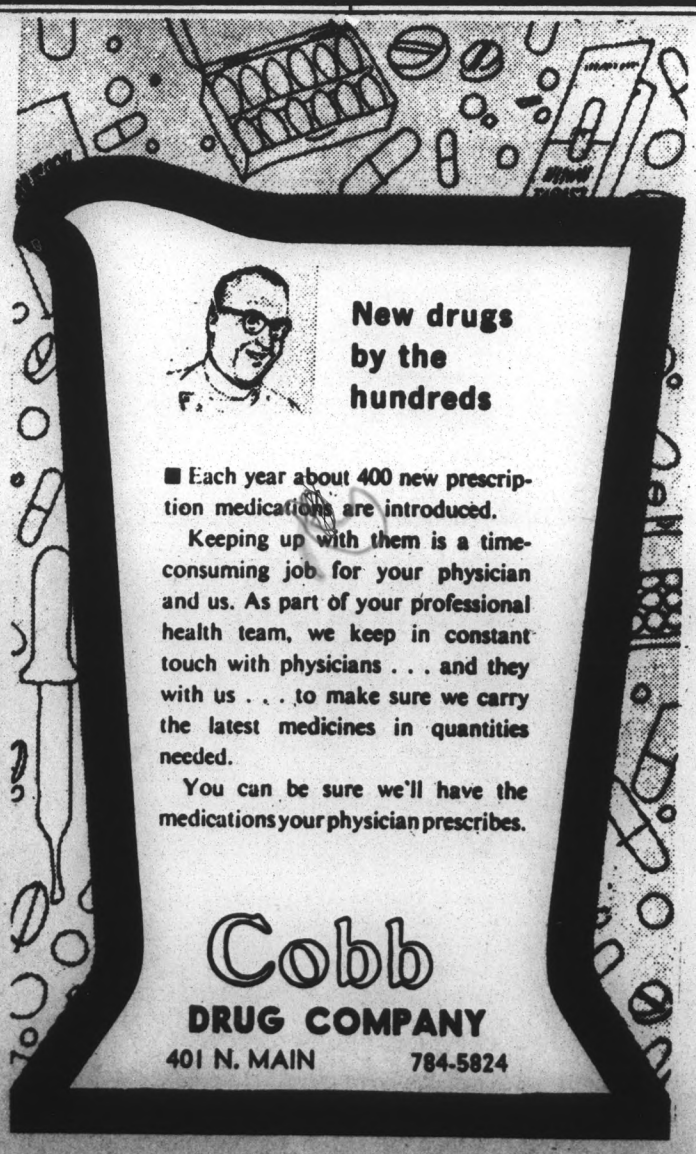

Jane Bennett and Jo Anne Purinton led group singing to close the meeting.

taining the position of assistant to the head nurse of the hospital.

Her son, Ira Spees Jr., is now employed at the hospital; a daughter, Mrs. Gordon Todd, resides at Ducor.

"I don't know why they want me for grand marshal of a rodeo parade," Mrs. Spees says. "I'm really not a horsewoman, in fact I haven't ridden since I was a girl on the Missouri farm where I was born. Of course we had to ride a horse back there; the roads got so bad in the winter you couldn't get around any other way."

But Mrs. Spees says she'll drive a horse and buggy through the Springville business district as grand marshal of the April 10 parade, if that's what the committee wants her to do, and as for the parade chairman, Donald Robinson, and the general chairman of the Springville-Sierra rodeo, Carlos Gregg, they say that the horse and buggy will be ready for her come parade morning.

"We feel that in having Mrs. Spees as parade grand marshal, we are honoring not only her, but also all of the men and women who have served, and are serving, in the Springville hospital," Robinson and Gregg state.

"After all, we are proud of the hospital, and we appreciate the people who work there. In a sense, Mrs. Spees is their representative, as well as the Springville community's, in this year's rodeo parade."

CHAPEL CHIMES

By Rev. N. J. Thompson

James I of England had weaknesses of character; yet his reign of 22 years could not be called a failure. James is best remembered for his interest in religion. Over 300 years ago, he authorized the translation of the Bible into English. This famous translation is known as the King James Version of the Bible.

James was troubled with a violent temper. But he was always ready to apologize for his outbursts. After he went to bed at night, he would remember occasions during the day when he was angry or unjust. Thereupon he would summon to his bedchamber some clergyman to help him "pray for the forgiveness of his sins." James tried to be a good man and a good king. On the whole, he did not fail entirely.

One day an old Groom of the Bedchamber named John Gib denied losing some valuable documents, and the king kicked him. James was highly nervous at the time, because news from Europe's battlefields was bad. Presently the king found the missing papers. He thought immediately of John Gib. How unjust he had been to his faithful Groom! So he sought out Gib, kneeled down before him, and refused to rise until Gib had pardoned him!

What would you have done? If you had been the king, would you have kneeled to your servant and begged his forgiveness? Yes, it takes real courage for a person to admit he's done wrong, and say, "I'm sorry. Please forgive me."

Our Lord told the story of the Prodigal Son, who squandered his wealth on foolish pleasures, but returned home humbly confessing, "Father, I have sinned." The father forgave him gladly. So will our Heavenly Father when we confess to Him.

Bill Provides That State Must Pay

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18 — Assemblyman Gordon Duffy (R-Kings and Tulare counties) has introduced a bill which would require the state to pay off outstanding capital improvement obligations when taking title to provide lands in unincorporated territory for highway or aqueduct purposes.

The bill provides that the state's payment shall be made to the public agency responsible for the debt and that the funds received shall be applied by the public agency to the bonded or contractual obligation for which it is responsible.

CANCER CRUSADE, set for the month of April, is well into the planning stages for the Porterville community, with above photo showing Jim Howell, left, accepting appointment as Porterville community chairman for 1965 from Rollan R. Olenberger, Porterville unit president, Tulare County branch, American Cancer society. Howell states that advance gifts are now being accepted, and that the Porterville Rotary club will head up the fund solicitation campaign in Porterville. Committee chairmen and workers for Porterville, and the surrounding areas, will be announced in the near future, Howell says.

From Daybell Nursery By John

Now the rain has temporarily taken care of your water problems you can relax and listen to the weeds grow. They should fairly shoot up with the longer, warmer days and the beneficial rainfall. There are ways to slow them down either with weed killers or with forest humus. However this hardly seems fair and may destroy the greenest part of your yard. On the other hand your wife may insist on a "no work no eat" policy in which case we offer the following suggestions.

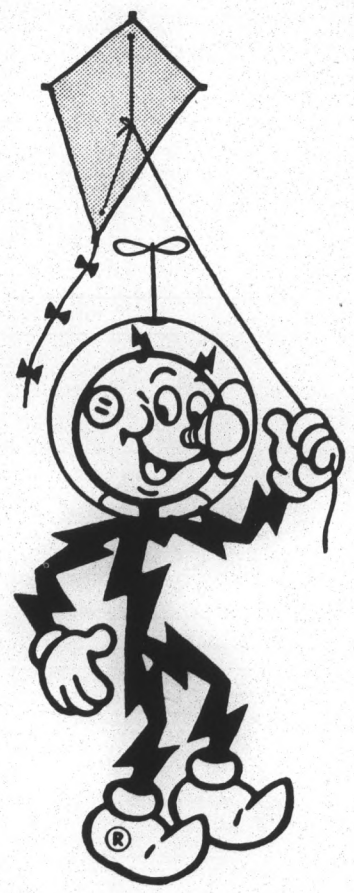

Many of the run of the mill weeds can be killed with weed oil. This doesn't hurt the soil and can be used around shrubs and small plants. We sell this oil and also loan you a sprayer to apply it. Weeds in lawns require special treatment for which we have several answers according to what weed and what lawn. We would be glad to answer questions on this. Also for preventing all growth and for edging lawns you might try Novege. This is a product of Dow Chemical and does a clean, neat job of weed removal.

A substitute for ground cover plants and a retarder of weeds is forest humus. A two or three inch layer of this looks well along with holding back the annual grasses. On top of this you could add a layer of pebble back which is attractive pieces of ornamental bark of pebble size. If all these fail you can still cement it or go back to petunia plants from Daybells. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare puts out a handsome little booklet (for sale for 10 cents by the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.) entitled "Your Children's Feet and Footwear".

This valuable document is chock full of little known and immensely helpful facts. Like:

"By the time school starts, the average child will have grown out of shoes he put aside at the beginning of vacation."

"Feet perspire a great deal."

"The time to replace shoes is when the child has outgrown them."

"The price of a shoe does not determine whether it is a good fitting shoe."

"Buy stockings and socks so that they are longer than the foot, but not so long that they wrinkle."

The type of mentality that believes the average consumer is too dumb to come in out of the rain is very much in evidence these days in drives for enactment of so-called truth-in-packaging legislation.

Existing federal laws properly require purity and quality in foods and drugs, and honesty in packaging and labeling. The proposed new packaging legislation would require standard container sizes and complex controls in the labeling of many consumer items, on the theory that most housewives are so hopelessly confused by the immense variety of goods on supermarket shelves that they panic and buy everything in sight whether they need them or not.

Supermarket managers have a different image of the Mrs. Average Consumer, however. In an article on marketing in the current issue of Nation's Business, housewives are pictured by the folks at the other side of the check-out counter as "a flinty band that surveys the newspaper food sections during the week and then descends on weekend supermarket sales with the determination of commandos hitting the beach."

The president of a New York industrial design firm, Walter P. Margulies, argues that the market place is a much more effective form of regulation than anything the government could set up:

"Every day there is a nationwide vote taken by consumers in the supermarket and other stores.

"They vote for the products they select and buy. If they find they've been cheated, they never buy that product again."

Or as the booklet on Feet and Footwear puts it:

"A child whose shoes hurt him will take them off every chance he gets."

Our Town—

By RUTH LOYD

"Dave," I screamed. "Darling, what do you have against trees?" The other end of the phone was ominously quiet. Someone was breathing very hard. Then Dave Rambo's golden voice came through to me, and we had a delightful discussion about trees. Dave feels sorry for people who have their sidewalks fixed because of tree roots. He doesn't think that having trees in the narrow parkways is worth the bother. I kept saying, "But they are so pretty, and so nice in the summer." Dave just commented about the bother. He should know. He's the wheel in the City hall who is in charge of such things.

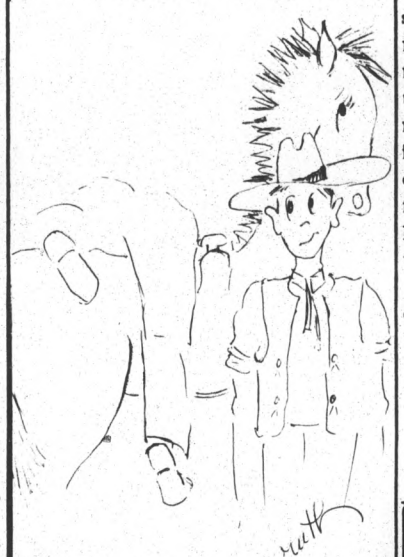

What about the trees in the park? Who butchered them in such an inhuman way? How come Earl Vaughn had such a field day with his little hatchet? Peggy Cole is on the Park commission and she had certain ideas about how the trees should have been pruned. Why have a Park commission if they don't have something to say?

It was fun talking to Dave tho, and I thank him for the information, but if he doesn't fix the gutter in front of our house I'm going to tell Ethel Prestage. If you want something done, that's the girl. She called and told me about calling the City and asking them to put diagonal strips in front of the Women's club. I was inclined to poo-poo her idea, but I wished her luck. Presto! Little men with brushes and things rushed up and drew the prettiest lines in front of the club. Now I have great faith in Ethel. Never underestimate the powers of a woman.

Basketball boys are worried about the floor of the new Gym. They would like anyone who dares to walk on the floor to wear mink shoes. Please don't bruise the hardwood. Dancing, horrors! Well the new gym happens to be a multi-purpose building, and the experts have promised that the finish on the floor will withstand normal wear, and the basket boys don't need to worry. Now, all Jim Maples and the team have to do is win all their games.

Owen Rutherford was in OUR TOWN last week, and he was worried about getting back to Pierpoint. Lots of snow at Pierpoint. I can't imagine anything worrying Owen. Much less a little snow.

Owen is such a doll. When he had the pack station, he was there to give a liberal education to anyone he thought he could bluff. His gentle way of helping me on a horse, and his gracious manner when we finally staggered off down the trail has forever endeared him to me. He scared me at first, until I caught on, and his remarks regarding me and a horse made me want to kill him.

Ed Carter was our packer when we went back to Painter's. He made our trip a special event our whole family will never forget. Our children learned more from him in a few days than we had been able to teach them in years. It wasn't until much later I realized how valuable Ed's teaching had been. He was a special part in the bringing up of our two children.

I wasn't so hot on a horse. I had been brought up to ride an English saddle, and the horse and I knew that I wasn't happy. By the time we got to Kern Flat I was ready to sit in the middle of the Kern river and forget the whole thing. It was so hot, and I was so sore and tired, and the silly horse kept looking around at me. Whoever said "I don't see how anything so full of hay could be so hard."

The only thing I don't like about trips is the rattlesnakes. At first some joker told me that snakes never came out at night. Like a nut, I believed him. I learned though. I have learned to check my sleeping bag too. I just can't imagine anything worse than crawling into a bag and your bare foot touching a snake. Any snake. I still get a shiver down my back thinking about it.

I'm glad my children had the chance to go into the back country. I'm afraid their children won't get the chance. There won't be any back country.

Misery is having Owen pretend to help me on a horse.

(1) That a special contract election will be held within the Vandalia Irrigation District on Tuesday, the 6th day of April, 1965, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors residing in the District the following Proposition:

"PROPOSITION: Shall the Vandalia Irrigation District enter into the proposed contract with the United States of America entitled 'Contract Between the United States of America and Lower Tule River Irrigation District, Porterville Irrigation District, Vandalia Irrigation District, and Pioneer Water Company, providing for the Operation and Maintenance of Irrigation Storage Space and for the Repayment of the cost of Success Dam and Reservoir Allocated to Irrigation' R. O. Draft 6/24-1964, Rev. R. O. 1/13-1965?"

The said contract has been approved by the Board of Directors of the district, by the U. S. Secretary of Interior, and by the California Districts Securities Commission. The contract contains the following provisions:

A. That there shall be vested in the District the right to the perpetual and exclusive irrigation storage use of 3,000 acre feet of storage space in Success Reservoir, being 4 per cent of the total irrigation storage space provided by the Success Dam and Reservoir, hereinafter referred to as "The Project".

B. That the operation and use of the said irrigation storage space for irrigation purposes by the District shall be subordinate only to the use of such space for flood control and shall be superior to the operation or use thereof for any other purpose.

C. That the District shall pay to the United States a sum not to exceed $55,100.00, exclusive of penalties and interest, as 4 per cent of the reimburseable costs of The Project allocated to irrigation, such sum to be paid without interest, in forty (40) successive equal annual installments of $1,377.50 each beginning on May 1 next following the date of execution of the contract.

D. That the District shall annually pay to the United States 4 per cent of that portion of the costs of operation and maintenance of Success Dam and Reservoir allocated to irrigation, which obligation of the District is initially estimated as $284.00 per annum, together with 4 per cent of the Bureau of Reclamation annual contract administration costs, which obligation of the District shall not exceed $200.00 per annum, exclusive of the costs of appraisal of excess lands and costs incurred by the addition of new parties to the contract.

E. That other parties to the contract who will receive the remaining 96 per cent of the storage space and pay the remaining 96 per cent of the costs are Lower Tule River Irrigation District, Porterville Irrigation District, and Pioneer Water Company, and each party may enter into storage subcontracts.

F. That new parties may be added to the contract under the conditions therein set forth.

G. That the District shall be prohibited from delivering water stored by The Project to irrigable lands served by the District, or a subcontractor, in excess of 160 acres held in beneficial ownership of a single person, referred to as "excess lands", and there is attached to said contract a form of recordable Agreement pertaining to Sale of Excess Lands, to be executed by owners of excess lands as a condition precedent to the delivery of stored water to their excess lands, and said contract further provides for the termination of the provisions of the contract relating to excess lands, under conditions therein set forth.

H. That the District is entitled to credit against the amount of its total obligation to the United States for that portion of payments made by the District to the United States under interim contracts in excess of the cost of operation and maintenance and the cost of contract negotiations, the amount of which credit has not yet been finally determined but is in the approximate amount of $11,615.90.

That said contract is on file in the office of the District and will be available at all times during business hours for inspection by any interested person, and said contract is hereby referred to for further particulars.

We Only Heard

CERTAINLY ALL news media have a right to make issues, to editorialize, but they also have a responsibility to ascertain the facts, unless, of course, the motive is sensationalism, in which case, facts are of little concern.

THE SIERRA View hospital is a district hospital, administered by an elected board. Medical care rules in the final analysis, are established by the hospital medical staff which consists of all medical doctors within the Sierra View district — 22 of them. Various committees of these doctors handle certain specific matters relating to medical policy within the hospital, including the passing on credentials of new doctors who come into the district. The medical staff elects a chief of staff, who serves for one year, and who at present is Dr. M. P. Moore. In addition there is a call doctor who is available for a 24-hour period, the doctors of the staff rotating this responsibility in alphabetical order.

NURSES OR other personnel working in the hospital have nothing to say about disposition of patients, or treatment of patients. A patient is admitted to the hospital, released from the hospital, and transferred to another hospital only on order of a doctor; treatment is provided by hospital personnel only on the order of a doctor.

DURING THE 1963-64 year, records at the Sierra View District hospital show that 2,325 emergency cases arrived at the hospital. Not one emergency was turned down, nor is an emergency ever turned down, regardless of race or creed, or lack of money. Disposition of these emergency cases depends not upon a decision by hospital personnel, but only by a doctor, who may order an emergency patient admitted to the hospital, order the patient released, order the patient to another hospital, or, at times, take a patient to his office for treatment.

IN CASES of emergency the doctor on call is summoned immediately — or any other doctor that may be available — sometimes a doctor who is in the the hospital at time of the emergency. And of course, if requested, the family doctor is contacted if possible.

IN THE case of the Camerano children, treatment was given at the Sierra View hospital — by a doctor. The children were sent home, following treatment — by a doctor, but were later rushed to the Springville hospital for emergency surgery. This doctor, in a forthright statement to the press, established his position in the case without alibi.

AS FAR as the Sierra View District hospital is concerned, there is no cause for criticism in the handling of the Camerano situation.

WHAT ABOUT the doctor? We are not qualified to say; perhaps there will be legal action in which a court will be asked to decide.

BUT WE would like to point out that when a doctor practices for day after day, year after year, taking cases as they come — the simple ones and the tough ones, the kids with a cold, and accident victims with mangled bodies, refusing none in times of stress and emergency, it is probable that somewhere along the line something will happen that will open the door to second guessers. Yet the doctor who is blasted with sensationally editorialized words because of one difference of opinion, involving judgment, may have saved many, many lives, and eased the suffering of many, many individuals.

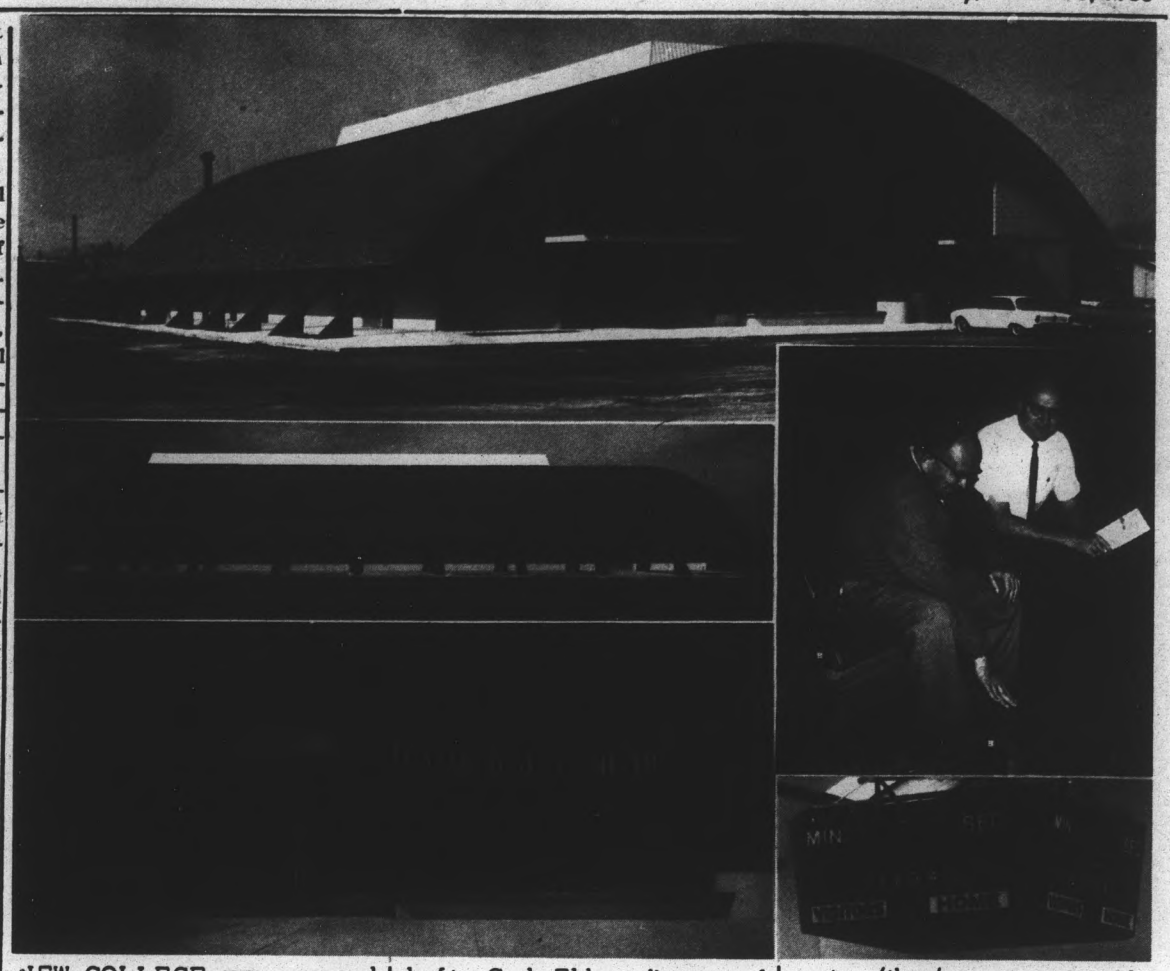

FOR WHAT it is worth, may we say that the Sierra View District hospital is a good hospital — not perfect, because human beings are not perfect. But a very good hospital. We suggest that irresponsible words on the air be not allowed to color your opinion of the hospital.

WE FURTHER suggest that if you are really interested in the operation of your hospital — and it is your hospital, since it is maintained by a taxing political subdivision — that you seek information from the elected directors of this hospital; from your own family doctor; from administrators of the hospital.

IF YOU find policies that you think should be changed, if you find weaknesses in administration, go straight to the elected board that has the responsibility of administering the hospital.

WE MAKE the same suggestion to Mr. Garlund. It is indeed too bad that he did not get the answers before he so dramatically threw questions on the air.

WE CAN only conclude that his motive is not the factual dissemination of information, nor the legitimate expression of editorial opinion, but rather a sensational air waves version of irresponsible, yellow journalism.
